Introduction

Living well with a physical disability in the United States is an expensive proposition. Most medical insurance coverage is very limited, sometimes nonexistent, for expenses needed to acquire necessary medical equipment, even ventilators for people who are unable to breathe adequately or wheelchairs for people unable to walk. “Medically Necessary” criteria for coverage are not uniform between plans, co-pays or coverage limitations can be burdensome and spending limitations often lead to poor quality items. Almost no insurance plans contribute to costs for architectural modifications of homes, vehicles, clothing or adaptive equipment that could increase one’s independence, productivity and/or Quality of Life. Consequently, many US citizens with physical impairments feel like they pay an “American surtax on disability”.

This resource guide has been assembled to assist Americans with disabilities, particularly polio survivors with significant motor and breathing impairments, to find financial assistance for the costs of obtaining desired medical equipment and/or environmental adaptive modifications that are otherwise not affordable to them.

Post-Polio Health International (PHI) has a long history as an organization committed to helping polio survivors live independently despite severe post-polio disabilities and their late effects. It has always encouraged polio survivors to take matters into their own hands and to assume personal responsibility for finding solutions to any barriers they may face to achieve the meaningful lifestyle they desire. It is in this spirit that a team of investigators coordinated by Sunny Roller has produced this compendium of possible resources available to assist people with disabilities obtain the adaptive medical and rehabilitative equipment and environmental modifications they determine that they need. Users will still have a lot of work to do in “selling their needs” to potential funding sources and identifying those local or regional funding sources most likely to be responsive to their needs.

As a physician specialist in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation with over 40 years of experience in helping polio survivors, I acknowledge their frustrations in dealing with our American healthcare system because of its apparent lack of support for people with disabilities in achieving their optimal potential for independence and Quality of Life. I have also witnessed the incredible persistence, creativity and intelligence of polio survivors in coming up with effective unique solutions for overcoming their barriers.

I sincerely hope and expect this resource guide to be of assistance to many people with disabilities who are otherwise limited in achieving their personal goals because of financial barriers to acquiring needed equipment and environmental modifications.

How To Use This Guide:

- These resources are access points for direct funding or in-kind gifts to meet the medical equipment for mobility and independence needs of polio survivors.
- Medical equipment and assistive technology can include, but are not limited to wheelchairs, crutches, scooters, and respiratory supplies.
- Many of the resources in this guide are Loan Closets. Loan Closets are designed to give people medical equipment for a limited time without charge or at an affordable rate. Many loan closets also offer free equipment exchange programs, alternative funding options, and free equipment to keep.
- If you don't see resources listed in your area, contact the relevant national or state-based resources in this guide for further assistance.
- This guide is not intended to list low-interest loans or product sales. While some resources may be easy to find, others may require more exploration. If you cannot find what you are looking for online, resource contact information has been included for further inquiry.

- If you know of any resources that are not listed and should be added to this guide, please contact Post-Polio Health International at info@post-polio.org.

Disclaimer:

This information is intended to assist in researching and acquiring medical or mobility equipment, and is in no way an offer or advertisement for a free equipment. PHI does not endorse any of the resources listed below. We are only providing a centralized location to find community resources. Resources listed are based on information we obtained as of October, 2019. If you discover that any of this information is no longer up to date, please contact Post-Polio Health International via email at info@post-polio.org. PHI will be updating this guide on a regular basis.

In some cases, organization descriptions and notes are taken directly from the organization's website in order to give the most accurate description of their services.

Available resources will vary by geographical location and can fluctuate throughout the year.
